

BLOOMICE ANTI-TERRORISM, PROTECT DUTY & MARTYN'S LAW READINESS STATEMENT

Our Commitment to Security and Resilience

Bloomice is committed to operating in a safe, secure and responsible manner. In line with the UK Government's proposed Terrorism (Protection of Premises) Bill ("Martyn's Law") and wider Protect Duty principles, we take proportionate steps to reduce vulnerability to terrorism-related risks and strengthen our preparedness across all business operations.

Although Bloomice does not operate large public venues, we recognise our broader duty of care to employees, customers, suppliers and partners.

What This Means in Practice

Bloomice maintains a structured approach to security awareness and operational resilience, including:

- Periodic risk assessments of premises, travel and operational activities
- Proportionate physical and procedural security measures
- Secure management of company vehicles and equipment
- Robust cyber-security and data protection controls aligned with UK GDPR
- Clear escalation and emergency response procedures
- Staff awareness training incorporating UK Government "Run, Hide, Tell" principles

Supply Chain Expectations

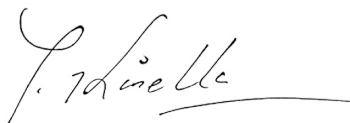

We expect our suppliers, contractors and service partners to maintain appropriate security controls and to comply with applicable UK legislation and best practice standards. Where relevant, we may request assurance that comparable protective measures are in place.

Security incidents that could impact Bloomice personnel, operations or data should be reported promptly through established communication channels.

Governance and Continuous Improvement

Bloomice management regularly reviews its security and resilience measures to ensure alignment with evolving UK legislative requirements, emerging threat landscapes and industry best practice.
